

LMN Promotes Three Key Staff

Seattle, Wash. – April 4, 2011 – LMN announced the promotions of three integral members of its multidisciplinary team of design professionals. Expanding leadership represents LMN's positive growth and impact through high quality design of cultural arts venues, convention centers, higher education facilities, commercial and mixed-use developments, interiors, and urban plans.

John Woloszyn has been named Principal. A technical design leader at LMN since 1992, John recently assumed the role of the firm's specifications writer, integrating a deep understanding of building systems and sustainability requirements with comprehensive knowledge of technical documentation.

Howard Fitzpatrick has been named Principal. A project designer at LMN since 2008, he has provided design leadership for a wide range of both private development and public projects; encompassing conceptual planning through final design and project execution..

Stephen Van Dyck has been promoted to Associate. As a project architect, Stephen's involvement is focused on complete integration of design, technology and detail execution. Stephen's recent work, performed in collaboration with LMN's Tech Studio, includes groundbreaking advances in project application of digital fabrication processes.

About LMN

LMN provides comprehensive planning and design services to create cultural arts venues, convention centers, education facilities, commercial and mixed-use developments, interiors, and urban plans that celebrate and enrich communities. The firm is widely recognized for distinctive, integrated design solutions that are highly responsive to specific social, cultural, economic and environmental influences. For more information, visit www.lmnarchitects.com.

###

Media Contact:

Sarah Blanchard, PARSONS, 206-789-5668, sarah@parsonspr.com